GETTY IMAGES

(CNN) -- Instead of feeling crisp and refreshed, Jesse Wu wakes up sluggish after 12 hours of sleep.

"If I sleep the right amount, I feel really good," said the 25-year-old who lives in a suburb of Chicago, Illinois. "If I sleep too long, I feel groggy throughout the whole day."

Does the Change of Seasons Make you SAD?

By Terre Seuss

As the days grow shorter, and both the temperatures and leaves begin to fall, many people also experience seasonal changes affecting their mood and ability to function. For millions of people, the coming of the winter months is more than a dreadful anticipation of cold weather, short days and the inability to enjoy the outdoor activities of summer.

What is SAD?

You're in a hurry. We know. So here's a shortcut to 6 pages
